

How Our SpaceMaker Portable Offices Can Improve Employee Health And Wellbeing

Employee well-being is a crucial metric for any business to measure itself by. It is a simple fact that a connected, motivated workforce collaborates more and performs better. A dedicated office space, by extension, can make your employees happier while, in turn, increasing their productivity levels – and this is where portable offices come into play.

Improved design and material selection have helped make portable offices more popular and accessible to Irish companies in recent years – and with all the benefits of a traditional office at a fraction of the cost, a portable office could be the solution your organisation is looking for to boost employee productivity and morale.

In this eBook, we explore how portable offices improve the health and well-being of your staff, and how our SpaceMaker range is the perfect solution for achieving as such.

The benefits our portable offices can have on employees

The SpaceMaker portable office is optimised for wellness. We created spaces with real companies in mind, and all of our offices contain features that promote greater happiness and wellness in the workplace.

Let's examine some of the benefits of portable offices that you can expect to find with our SpaceMaker.

Improved air quality

Most Irish office workers spend their days indoors, and this can expose them to a wide range of viral particles and pollutants that increase their risk of illness. The SpaceMaker offers an intricate ventilation system that helps regulate and circulate fresh air, keeping workers healthier and more focused.

Natural light

Light exposure is crucial for positive mental health, and unfortunately, ample natural lighting is something many modern office spaces in Ireland lack. The SpaceMaker ensures that employees have access to plenty of light throughout the day, which boosts their vitamin D intake – something almost every Irish person has been warned about by their GP!

Sustainable materials

We make SpaceMaker offices with environmentally friendly materials sourced from Ireland. We also integrate energy-efficient heating and lighting systems to help keep the country green. Employees and employers alike can feel proud knowing they are working in a space built with a healthier planet in mind – and your organisation's reputation will be enhanced as one leading the way in creating greener workplaces.

Additional facilities

The SpaceMaker can be custom fitted to your request. Our bespoke layouts include features such as kitchenettes, full restrooms, partitioned spaces for employees, and locker rooms. The ability to easily personalise your office means greater amenities and comfort for your staff. When people feel supported in their workplace, job satisfaction and productivity increase.

Mental health

Mental health issues continue to plague many countries around the world today, and Ireland is no exception. This means it is vital for Irish employers to invest in creating an environment that promotes psychological well-being. An employee-optimised layout makes a portable office a good investment in your organisation's mental health, which will further encourage the best and brightest to seek your company out for employment opportunities.

Diversity

A diverse workplace leads to greater satisfaction, productivity, and growth opportunities. Part of any strong diversity initiative is creating a work environment that supports each employee's individual needs and comfort. We offer SpaceMaker Plus offices in addition to our standard models, allowing you to give every individual the type of work environment they need to thrive – even with the largest of workforces on your roster.

Our SpaceMaker portable offices can change how your employees work

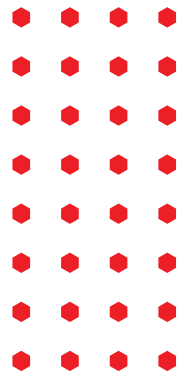

Revolutionise how your employees work, and how they perceive your company – equip and expand your business with the SpaceMaker and SpaceMaker Plus portable buildings today.

High-quality, bespoke, customisable, contemporary, versatile, and compliant with building regulations, both portable offices are available for hire as well as outright purchase.

Get in touch today at sales@ecomod.ie or call 01 862 3702 to speak to our friendly, experienced team about how the SpaceMaker portable building can change the health and well-being of your employees for the better.

EcoMod

 ecomod.ie

 01862 3702

 sales@ecomod.ie